mission, and for one I am not disposed to disturb it.

It has been stated by the gentleman that preceded me that this industry prospered when it had the advantage of the premium on gold; but since the premium has gone down it has been greatly embarrassed. I undertake to say, to a large extent from personal info.mation and observation of the business where it is carried on extensively in my own district, that with the present tariff it cannot exist.

Large amounts of capital have been invested in the enterprise, and those most skilled in the pottery business tell me, and I am sure they tell me truly, that it cannot I am sure they tell me truly, that it cannot is keep up unless it has some further relief from tariff duty.

In the district I have the honor to represent and in the city of Wheeling we have an extensive pottery manufactory, which is under the management of a gentleman of English birth and education, Edward M. Pearson. He grow up in the business in England and became skilled in the art. I hold in my hand a table furnished by him to the Tariff Commission. From that table we learn that the amount of work in his establishment during the previous six hold in my hand a table turnished by into the Tariff Commission. From that table we learn that the amount of work in his establishment during the previous six months cost $27,283. And that the same amount of work at the same amount of work at the same time in-Lingland would have cost $12,037. This apity illustrates the difference between the cost of labor in the two countries.

No country can boast of finer pottery material than we have in this country, and in the language of Mr. Pearson. "No country does or can produce a finer quality of stone china than America."

Now the question is presented to us, shall this enterprise go down or shall we foster and encourage it?

The demand for articles of earthers ware in this country amounts to millions of dollars annually. Now shall these millions be expended in Europe or retained in America?

Shall we ancourage European, enterprise or American enterprise; encourage European labor or American labor, feed European subjects or American citizens? Mr. Chairman, who is to be benefited by the development of this industry? Let the American Congress answer to the American people the question, for whom do you legislate? [Here the hammer fell.] GLASSWARE. Upon the motion of Mr. Tucker to re-uce the duty upon certain articles of glassware.

Mr. Wilson—I am sorry to see this attempt made to strike down one of the large enterprises of this country. All manufactoring enterprises depend on two questions: The first is the cost of producing the articles; the second is the amount of money that that article brings in the market. We are told by gentlemen who have investigated this subject carefully and attentively that the labor invested in the

THE LEGISLATURE.

The Senate adjourned early Saturday, and its brief afternoon session was entirely, devoted to routine business. The report of the Penitentiary committee and that of the Finance committee, two important documents, were submitted, and swelled the journal to immense proportions. The House occupied the usual time in debate, though a good deal of work was also done.

The Committee on Finance and Taxation submitted its report recommending an increase of 5 cents in the annual levy. On motion of Mr. Dawson the report was laid on the table and ordered printed in the journal. Mr. Dawson contemplates offering a minority report recommending an increase of 10 cents, as the increase favored by the committee will not produce sufficient revenue to meet the existing deficit and pay necessary chargeson the Treasury. A petition was offered by Mr. Isbell, from the citizens of Braxton county, asking the modification of the pharmacy law so as to allow country merchants to sell certain drugs and medicines.

Consideration of the House Bill to provide for a State Inspector of mines consumed a large part of the afternoon session.

Mr. Stifel moved to commit the bill, but this motion was rejected, and on motion of Mr. Dovener the House made the bill the special order for Tuesday at 11 A.

The point I made was that the views of the English manufacturers are in accord with the argument made by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Cox]. They are the views of the importer and the jobber. They are crying aloud for low duties in the United States, and by public cards, letters, circulars, and all that kind of thing are appealing to members of Congress to keep down the duty so that the American manu-

Mr. Chairman: A duty of 50 per cent is now imposed by law upon foreign painted, printed, gidded and otherwise decorated china, porcelain, parian, bisque, earthen, stone and crockery ware. The bill under consideration proposes to increase the duty to 65 per cent: I am opposed to the gentleman's amendment to strike out a portion of these articles. The Tariff Commission, to which this subject was referred, have reported in favor of increasing the duty to 65 per cent.

Thus we have, Mr. Speaker, the recommendation by that commission, which is based upon a careful examination and study of the subject. They inform Congress that that change is absolutely necessary to the maintainance of that industry in this country, and that without such relief there must be a material reduction, if not an absolute destruction of the manufacture of earthen ware in this country.
